

Invisible

The main argument against God is: does He exist? I mean how convenient is it that God claims to be invisible. Yet, invisible He is. Now, why would God be invisible. Of course, the main explanation is that He does not exist. God is a construct in the minds of men. Greek philosophers like to contend that nothing exists outside the conscious. We do dream of impossible worlds. People have invented things we never thought of. Yet, everything had a beginning. Fire made a path to the microwave. Air paved the way to a balloon. Everything on earth began with the simplest forms. Where does that leave God?

Why do men believe in the unseen spirits? Where did the concept of invisible beings come from? In the very beginning someone decided that we had a spirit. An invisible thing that lives within us. Where did that come from? To what is its simplest form? We have a body that has a brain. That brain controls our body. It's where we live isn't it? Why do we think that humans evolved from monkeys? Simplest forms. Darwin used observation to make his theory of evolution. Running fast turns into the speed of light. Everything began somewhere. Again, where does that leave God?

In the Bible is a statement that God is Spirit. It also says that the invisible God left us something to know him by. Let's look at several things. One is creation. we are a very complex creation. Things are not random. There are uniform genes and uniform calculations that make our body hold together and move. It would be astronomical for the ant and the human to evolve from the same organism. Oh, sure people say we did. But, did they do the research? Did they really follow the science? The human being is a very complicated machine.

Why are humans the only creature that kills for fun? That reasons before they act? There is a difference between individuality and pre programmed survival instincts of animals. Humans don't roll that way, yet here we are. An emotional machine that thinks differently than all other creatures. Do dogs have a God that they made up? Do monkey's and birds? No, humans are not a simplest form creature.

What does God have to say? Romans 1:19-20 “since what may be known about God is plain to them, because God has made it plain to them. 20 For since the creation of the world God's invisible qualities—his eternal power and divine nature—have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made, so that people are without excuse.”

People will say God does not exist. Yet, those very people have no proof He does not exist. The Bible says that we see the fingerprint of God's design all over the place. It's in complex DNA. It's in the makeup of the eye to the way creation works together. God made humans the caretakers of this planet. We have the means to make it paradise or hell. People rule this earth because we are the best creature to do so. It stands to reason that something smart and powerful made us. We are not a complex creature that evolved from random chance.

There is no visible simplest form of the spirit. Where did that construct of a God or spirit originate? In the minds of men? You're telling me that men took something that never existed and thought deeply about it. They made that thing into a religion that has survived thousands of years on every corner of this planet in every culture? You're also telling me the pigmy and the native North American both thought up the same construct that Greek men did?

Look, Patrick your argument is irrelevant, God and spirits don't exist because we can't see them. The Bible is just a book made up from the minds of men. Fair enough but ponder this.

What proof do you have that Rembrandt (the painter) exists? You might say in history books. You might say in the paintings he left. Yet, in all honesty, how do you really know? He could be a construct in the minds of men. What if someone else painted those pictures? Prove that he, did it?

Now, God is found in the Bible. It's a history book. There have been rumors that He existed. People will say that God is found in the things he made like people and trees. That His artistry is all over this world. Yet, how do we know that He did it? What if aliens came here and made everything? For most atheists the chance of aliens outmatches the existence of God. However, we have never seen either of them, have we?

Why is God invisible? It's because we only believe what we want to believe. If the being named God claimed to make creation, we can see it and believe it. However, we can freely choose to ignore it. To believe things came from other places. What I find interesting is the atheist. They will use as little science as possible to prove their belief. I have heard many of them say science will prove us right in time so until then we are right. They will also claim that heaven cannot exist. Why? It's because it's just a theory or construct created by men. Of course, it's a different type of theory or construct than Darwin came up with.

I suspect it will go down like this. In time you will see God when we become spirit like Him. At that point we will finally understand. Until then speculation will just be an invisible construct that can't possibly be true.
