

Not Listening

The lack of good story in Hollywood these days is sad. You could call it concerning, but is it? This entity has been enveloped in social engineering for a long time. Some would say it is a recent thing. Yet, propaganda war clips have always been there. American war hero movies are all over the place. Hollywood and government working hand in hand is not a new thing. Yet, the vilifying of the Trump administration took social engineering to a different level. I am not a Biden or Trump supporter (Canadian duh). Yet, I do not like what Hollywood has become: an arm of the democratic party. Here in Canada the CBC has the same distinction. Story takes second place to agenda.

The ratings of entities like Hollywood and the CBC are at horrific lows. Considering they hold court with social propaganda that low rating is a good thing. Who is really watching? The opposition are calling it alarming. Yet, nobody is watching. The book called 1984 depicted people being forced to watch tv every morning. It is the one thing the current social terrorists cannot do. Force us to listen and watch. People are leaving the theatres and cable companies in droves. A major cable company in Canada caved in. The CRTC is a government entity designed to protect Canadian content. Yet, they are now a tool of the government to restrict what we see. Still, they cannot control what we watch. They only offer stuff that we won't watch.

The CBC is the government social medium. In the past it was the only way we could watch hockey and the news. These days less than 1% watch this station. They can spout propaganda all they want. Nobody is listening. So, the Canadian government is fighting back. They have new legislation that would give them direct control over viewable content. I suppose they believe people will watch their stuff if everything else is censored. Oh, they are wrong.

Human freedom will find a way. Yet, it is troubling. Is freedom in the free world eroding? Are we the cause of this by the way we vote? I for one will say yes, it is our own fault.

What does God have to say? Isaiah 59:2 “But your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God, and your sins have hidden his face from you so that he does not hear.” There are plenty more scriptures. The scary part is God turning His back. It is not about God not listening. It is His universe; He hears it all. Yet, God is not obligated to respond. He can turn His face, ears, and goodness away from those who reject Him. It is interesting that I said once that the devil did a good job on me before I was a Christian. A man piped up and said “no, the devil did not do it, you were doing fine all on your own as a sinner.” That struck home with me. I am to blame for my own sin. We are to blame for our own government.

If North America loses its freedom, it is because of how we voted. But Patrick I did not vote for these people? True, but we all have let it slide. Canada is one country. We are one people. I will bet that one inch at a time our for-fathers have slipped on training their kids. The values of what is moral and true have gone astray. In ten years? Oh no, I am betting this moral leak has been happening for a long time. We are just reaping the fruits of bad parenting now in this age. I am to blame as well. I voted liberal once. I laughingly shrugged my shoulders on bad behaviour. We have all played a role to get where we are. I heard that in one town only 23% voted. We all have contributed to this moral slide.

In Canada the current Prime Minister did not win the popular vote. The only reason he remains in office is because of our electoral system. Another party can add their votes to prop up another party. Unfortunately, both parties are willing to take down the current country to adhere to their social agenda. However, I am not that worried. What goes up must come down. Hitler must have looked bleak. Yet, he lasted around 6 years. Is there any tyrant that has lasted long?

How to learn morals 101? Vote in the wrong people. Now, we hope that learning does not involve 6 million people perishing in a paltry 6 years.

I have heard a few young people lately. There is a slow turning of the tide. Yet, it is slow. Death and starvation might have to happen. However, they are all objective lessons. Do not like death? Do not like starvation? Don't like being told what to watch and hear? Then vote differently. Sometimes there will be trouble getting the fox out of the hen house. It might take will and unity. In a divided culture this might take time. Young people need to become older people to make the change. In the mean time the wheels of social agenda are rolling. This whole mess will most likely get a whole lot worse before it gets better.

It begins at home. My pastor alluded to what we say and believe at home. Why are the kids turning away from God? Why are morals changing? What if it was the teacher? The parent sets the examples. He also said that if we do not teach our children right and wrong the devil most certainly will. Our school will set the bar? The Prime Minister knows right from wrong? What if it began at home? I do not listen to the news. Do my kids? Do I know if they do? Social media could have been a great thing. I still believe in it. Maybe that is why we must fail for a time. What I allow at home is allowing the next generation to be what they are taught outside my home.
